- 09.15 am – 09.30 am – Keynote 1 – GREG JONES: AN UPDATE ON CLIMATE CHANGE & CHANGE
SPONSORED BY: WINES OF PORTUGAL
- 09.30 am – 10.30 am – Session 1: GREEN HOUSE GAS EMISSIONS: IDENTIFICATION, EDUCATION, AND MITIGATION – Green House Gas (GHG) emissions are the main contributor to global climate change and to which wine contributes significantly albeit less than many agricultural sectors. More than most, however, wine is severely affected by climatic changes with GHG a major concern. This panel will offer insights into GHG emissions by the wine sector, how it impacts markets, and steps we all can take to reduce our contributions.

- 09.15 am – 09.30 am – Keynote 5 – HANS SCHULTZ: DIFFERING ASPECTS OF BIODIVERSITY, TOURISM, CARBON SEQUESTRATION
SPONSORED BY: DAVID FURER CONSULTS
- 09.30 am – 10.30 am – Session 7: BIODIVERSITY AND THE VINEYARD OF TOMORROW – As more attention is paid to organic, biodynamic, and regenerative agriculture, it has become clear that the monoculture we've established for grape growing seriously jeopardizes the future of wine. By embracing more biodiversity, wineries are discovering that they are making better wine, they are also tending healthier vines. The panel will discuss the benefits of introducing more biodiversity to grape growing.

- 10.45 am – 11.45 am – Session 8: THE FUTURE OF WINE TOURISM – As both wine tourism and eco-tourism continue to grow, how do we bridge the gap? Decisions made by Millennials and Gen Z on where and how to spend their leisure time has grown to be closely tied to their personal values, and which frequently extend businesses applying sustainable practices. These presenters explore what wine producers should do to be better corporate citizens while tapping into the market for eco-friendly wine tourism.

- 11.45 am – 12.45 pm – Session 9: WHAT IS CARBON SEQUESTRATION AND WHY SHOULD WE CARE? – As we know CO<sub>2</sub> is a major byproduct of winemaking playing a significant role in global climate change. There is a real and urgent need for a long, unprecedented and sustained effort to “de-carbonize” our atmosphere with the achievement of carbon neutrality no longer considered adequate. This panel will explore carbon capture technologies and techniques and other ways of becoming “carbon negative”.

- 03.45 pm – 04.45 pm – Session 11: THE UPS & DOWNS OF VINEYARD LOCATIONS - Climate change has forced us to rethink our old ways of thinking, our traditions, our grapevines, our grape varieties, and our terroir. As we think about the future of our industry, and specifically our own businesses, we might find ourselves venturing forth to new heights (higher elevation, cooler vineyard locations) or new frontiers (moving outside of our existing region). These speakers will discuss how businesses have acted upon or will act upon our climate-changing future with regards to their current and future location of vineyards.

- 04.45 pm – 05.45 pm - Session 12: GREENING THE SUPPLY CHAIN- Transport accounts for around one-fifth of global carbon dioxide (CO<sub>2</sub>) emissions. In some countries – often richer countries with populations that travel often – transport can be one of the largest segments of an individual's carbon footprint. Along with supply issues due to the global pandemic and sociopolitical events, supply chain issues are top of mind for the industry. This panel offers perspectives on reducing the transport carbon footprint and ways to make the supply chain greener.

- 02.30 pm - 03.30 pm - Session 16: THE ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL IMPACT OF RENEWABLE POWER – Power costs are significant to a running winery. It requires a lot of energy to keep all the lights on and the wine cool. Energy from renewable sources is becoming better and cheaper. Solar installations are becoming the norm for many wineries. This session will address the viability of using more renewable energy sources in the production cycle.

- 03.45 pm – 04.45 pm – Session 17: TURNING WATER INTO WINE EFFICIENTLY – It takes a lot of water to make wine. Depending on location and vineyard practices, it can take 960 liters of water to make one liter of wine. Upon first glance this seemingly wasteful act is irresponsible considering the record draughts many wine regions have experienced during the past decade. This panel will discuss methods of reducing water use, treating wastewater for reuse, and how small changes can make a big difference.

- 09.30 am – 10.30 am – Session 19: NAVIGATING THE WATERS OF GOVERNMENT POLICIES – Government oversight has always been a mixed blessing for the wine business. It may secure protective land use and curb irresponsible practices, or heavy-handed policies may curtail the effectiveness of even the more flexible and successful wineries. These speakers will review current issues, their impact for the present, and what future opportunities may develop.
